

Promoting Off-farm based Livelihoods: Some Experiences

An Output of a Writeshop

A Resource Book on 'Promoting Off-farm based Livelihoods: Some Experiences, An Output of a Writeshop' has recently been published by ILRT. It covers ten cases delving deeper into the social dimensions – best practices, successes, failures, bottlenecks, support systems, access to common property resources, gender dimensions, etc. – of small-holders in value chains of various agricultural, horticultural commodities. The concepts and principles used in the write up are very simple to understand.

This compilation of field derived experiences resulted from a participatory workshop conducted on June 27-29, 2016 at Henry Martyn Institute, Hyderabad and was represented by about 20 practitioners from the regional offices of ILRT. The unique process popularly known as 'writeshop', included a production team and logistics staff who worked closely with a team of editors, artist and desktop publishing staff. Prior to the writeshop the ILRT faculty helped document the experience by visiting most of the field from where the case writers derived the experience. It is hoped that the ensuing product will serve as a guiding document for the practitioners, academicians as well as policy makers.

The 147 page document can be purchased at a price of INR 250 (plus shipping costs). Please contact anitha.b@ilrtindia.org to know more...
